Lisa Rabey
https://nerdgirl.net
hithere@nerdgirl.net

Social Media

Company A is proud to announce @companyB has now joined the Company A family and we're proud to announce the new software you've been asking for has finally arrived. Say hello to $product! Want to know more? More details can be found at $URL.

Blog
TITLE

Company A, with support from Company B, is pleased to announce the arrival of our joint application development solution, New Product. With a huge developer and support community, reputation for stability and performance, powerful package management system, and ease of use, New Product was a natural choice.

But we were not just swayed by Company B's community or support alone! There were other factors such as the Product handbook and its concise and robust documentation. Company A, where we also love well thought out and concise technical writing, have added our own Product tutorials to the mix with Getting Started with Product series. The Getting Started series will not only cover the basics of Product security, maintenance, and the software ins and outs but will also cover more in-depth topics and questions with help from Company A's and Company B's community and forums.

Now you may be wondering why it took so long to get Product to our customers? Whereas other software, like Other Product offer cloud versions of Similar Thing, Product originally did not. Under the joint forces of Company A and Company B, they were able to develop and position New Product for future application installations in a SaaS environment. Now previous and new fans of Product can deploy and customize their development workspaces and droplets in a few clicks. If you've ever wanted a chance to experiment on Product, and have tutorials at your fingertips while you play, now you can change the world!

Click here to launch a Product image and go here for our series on the getting started with Product, including a primer on the difference between on previous versions of Product.

Press Release Example
NEW YORK – May 16, 2023 Beginning today, Company A is now offering New Product, a secure and high performance development system that is suitable for scaling large and small projects and applications.

The availability of New Product on Company A allows users and developers to port software and applications across different OSes. New Product now runs on distributed SaaS computing, automate jobs, and simplify applications for use in open source development.

Thanks to the stability of the OS and its security, $product remains a popular choice among users and system administrators and developers. It also has an active community of support and documentation.

"Quote from someone in Company A."

About New Product
New Product is new development tool focusing on features, speed, and stability. New Product was originally developed at Company B. Learn more URL or follow Company A on social media.

About Company A
Company A, Inc. (URL / social media) is a cloud infrastructure provider focused on simplifying the web for software developers. The company is headquartered in New York City with data centers throughout the world. For more information, please reach out to press@companya.com